your skin healthy —
will keep it lovely too

NO CREAM transforms the skin. But scientific care, which encourages swift circulation through the tissues and keeps the skin cells vividly healthy, will make your skin clear, soft and firm.
This is the foundation of the Elizabeth Arden method.
Cleansing the skin—with Elizabeth Arden's Venolian
Cleansing Cream—removes impurities which clog the pores and cause blackheads. Brisk patting—with Arden's Skin
Tonic and Special Astringent—tones the skin and firms the contours. Nourishing—with Orange Skin Food or the delicate Vivina Cream—fills out the skin cells and so corrects lines and wrinkles. Follow this same method in the care of your skin at home.

BETTER FIGHT FOREST FIRES
WHEN REQUESTED

The Cadillac chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America reports that one of its members, a special conservation officer, discovered a brush fire in Wexford county and, while employing every facility at hand to hold this fire in check, realized that it was beyond his control. He then called upon two fishing parties, both of which refused to help. The report further says that others appeared on the scene and joined in fighting the fire. By this time the fire had become too much for the entire party and the conservation officer left to call in the aid of the nearest state fire fighting unit. The fire tower at Mesick said that the smoke had been sighted and that a truck was on the way.

For the information and guidance of those of the fishing parties who refused to lend their aid in combating this fire, and for others who may be similarly inclined in the future, the following extract taken from the Michigan forest fire law is quoted: Sec. 5, "and each deputy game, fish and forest warden and assistant fire wardens shall have authority to call to his assistance in emergencies any able-bodied male person over eighteen years of age who shall be paid for his services at the rate of three dollars per day and this same rate for parts of days, and if such person refuses, without reasonable justification or excuse, to assist, or if any fire warden refuses or neglects to perform the duties assigned him in this act, such officer or person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed three months."

CHECKING UP ON TROUT

The fishermen of Michigan are lending valuable aid to the study of the growth and migrations of the brook, brown, and rainbow trout by mailing to Jan Metzelaar, Biologist of the fish division, the tags and data on tagged trout taken this season. Accurate data is obtained by comparing the information furnished by the fishermen with the records of the department which show the date, locality, and length of the fish when tagged. It can be readily seen that the success of this work depends largely upon the fisherman in supplying to Dr. Metzelaar accurate information concerning the location where the fish was taken, the date, and its exact length.

The trout fisherman need never be in doubt as to how to proceed in this work. On the back of each license will be found the following statement: "The department of conservation has distributed several thousand trout, marked with metal tags. If you catch a tagged trout, please detach the tag and mail it to Dr. Jan Metzelaar, Ann Arbor, Michigan, stating length of trout, date and locality of capture, as accurately as possible. In this way we will be enabled to check up on the growth and migrations of our trout and the general results of our plantings. Tags will be returned to sportsmen if desired."

NAVY GETS 25 NEW BOMBING PLANES

It is learned by the Navy Recruiting Station, Detroit, that a contract for 25 bombing planes with spare parts and handling gears, was awarded June 1 by the Navy Department to the Glenn H. Martin Co. of Baltimore. The contract also includes an option on an additional five planes of the same type with 25% spare parts. It is stated that the planes were contracted for under the terms of the five year naval aircraft program, which calls for 1,000 planes by 1932.

WHAT IS A BAD BOY?

Alpena has learned how to deal with the boy problem. Once upon a time Alpena, like many other towns of its size, worried a good deal about its boy gangs, its tough "hangouts" and its petty infractions of law and order by juvenile offenders. But some sensible people in Alpena studied the boy and determined his needs. Now they have their boys so busy learning crafts, enjoying sports and hobbies that they have no time for mischief. A boys' club turned the trick.

Judge Fred F. Smith, who has had a lot of experience with juvenile cases, made a speech the other day in which he told how they had turned the attention of the boys from mischief to employments worth while. He said, "Juvenile delinquency is almost nil in Alpena. Few boys now are brought into juvenile court. Our police have very little trouble with the youngsters and skipping school and the petty troubles formerly engaging the attention of the court officers have almost ceased. The chief factor in bringing about the change is the Alpena Boys' Club."

Alpena has learned a truth which also has been discovered in some other communities, that a bad boy usually is a potential good boy looking for something interesting to do.—Detroit News.

HOPES TO PHOTOGRAPH FOXES

A motion picture reel depicting logging operations in Michigan woods is completed, reports Walter Hastings, staff photographer of the conservation department. Hastings will now devote his time to the completion of a three reel picture illustrating much of the animal life of this State. Hastings says that he has located a fox den and is employing his ingenuity to overcome the native shyness of mother fox and her seven pups, to the point where they will pose and be unafraid in the presence of the buzzing film as it flickers across the lens of his motion picture camera. Knowing of Hastings' successes in obtaining pictures of Michigan wild life we are looking forward to viewing the crafty red fox on the screen.

PLANT TREES

Of the thousands of land owners throughout the state only 127 this spring realized that by planting trees on their property it would be made enjoyable as a place of habitation, more profitable to sell and that ultimately a certain financial yield in forest production would result. Orders for nursery stock should be entered as soon as possible for fall shipment. Any information desired on costs, proper kinds of trees to plant, etc., can be secured from the department of conservation, Lansing.

NEW FISHING LAW EFFECTIVE AUGUST 28

The new inland fishing bill effective August 28, 1929, provided that all non-residents over 18 years of age must have a license for taking all kinds of fish, the fee for which is three dollars per year; also that all residents over 18 years of age are required to procure a license to catch trout, the annual fee being one dollar. These provisions will not be enforced, however, until the season of 1930, in view of the fact that the season is nearly at an end when the act becomes effective.

More About Moonshine

The moon "shines" because of the reflection of the sun upon it. However, we can sometimes see the complete circle of the moon even though the face of that body is not directly in the sun's light. This is because the reflection of the sun on the earth is bright enough to make it visible to us.

POULTRY FACTS

CLEAN AND SPRAY TO CONTROL LICE

Preventive Measures Should Be Taken Before Summer.

Surveys, made by the poultry department of the North Carolina State college, show that more than 53 per cent of all poultry flocks in North Carolina are infested with either lice or mites.

"These pests multiply very quickly during the hot months and for that reason control measures should be taken before the summer sets in," says Dr. B. F. Kaup, head of the department. "The henhouse should be given a thorough cleaning with a 4 per cent coal tar dip. All cracks and crevices should be sprayed and the perches painted with a pure dip or creosote. New scratch litter and nesting material should be put in before the hens are allowed to use the house, if these precautions are not taken, the sitting hen will be killed and the small chicks will weaken and die."

The adult fowl should be dusted with sodium fluoride. This should be used sparingly as there is some danger of injuring the skin. A pinch of the material should be held between the thumb and finger and worked among the feathers. This operation should be continued until the entire body has been covered, and should be repeated in five days if all the lice were not killed.

All brooder houses, henhouses or any place that the chickens roost should be gone over with the 4 per cent solution of coal tar and where possible the hens transferred to another house during the cleaning.

Doctor Kaup recommends that new houses be built, especially where the old houses have been in use over a long period and are thoroughly infested with the pests. The old houses should then be torn down and burned, he says.

More Hopper Space for Feeding Fowls Is Urged

To enable all the hens to obtain plenty of laying mash it pays to allow ten feet of hopper feeding space to each 100 hens. A five-foot trough hopper open on both sides gives good satisfaction. These open hoppers built up some little platform to keep out the straw litter are proving more popular than wall hoppers, and some poultrymen are tearing out their wall hoppers and installing the hopper open boxes. Then the mash does not clog and is plainly visible to the hens. If the wall hoppers remain they can be used as a reserve supply and mash taken from them and added to the open hoppers as the supply needs replenishment.

Eliminate Tuberculosis From Chicken Quarters

Fortunately with poultry the disease is not difficult to control. It should be remembered that the disease is confined to very old birds. Birds under a year old are seldom infected. By separating a flock in which the number of old birds has been kept at a low figure the danger of infection is reduced. If, however, the premises are badly infected the house and yards should be given a rest for two years. The house can be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected, and then be used, but to eliminate tuberculosis from the yards the rest of the year is necessary. During the resting of the yards their cultivation is desirable.

Actions of Guineaes

A guinea will usually build her nest in the edge of a briar patch or under a clump of weeds, and while on the nest will enter a soft and long cackle, similar to the note which she utters when the male bird often stands near the nest and cackles while the hen is on the nest. When the hen gets a large nestful of eggs, she will get broody and go to sitting on them, if she is not broken up. When she goes to sitting she rises and flies from her nest when she comes off.

Direct Sunlight Best

Direct sunlight promotes health and egg production. Sunlight through ordinary window glass is ineffective. Only direct sunlight or sunlight which passes through special glass or glass substitutes, which will permit the ultra-violet rays to pass through, is beneficial.

Direct sunlight or its equivalent aids in maintenance of health, reduces mortality, increases egg production and improves hatchability and quality of eggs, especially egg-shell texture.

Feeds for Poultry

For poultry feeding, the right kind of protein is generally obtained from milk, skim milk, buttermilk, whey, fresh meat, meat scraps, fish scraps, trash, or alfalfa leaf meal feeds. Very little of it is found in the common farm feeds, and for this reason when home-grown grains are used, it is necessary to purchase small amounts of the high protein feeds to supplement the home-grown grains. Milk of any kind is the most popular protein feed for poultry.

Porcupine Shown to Be Much Maligned Animal

One of the most unaccounted-for deaths of the woods and one about which has been woven many a fantastic tale is the porcupine. It is the marksman of the forest, as the story goes—the boyman that shoots barbed arrows at those it sees fit to attack. One in imagination can almost see a cloud of quills winging their way toward some enemy, ready to pierce any unprotected skin and, once beneath the skin, presenting the problem of the fishhook imbedded in a luckless angler's finger. It has the reputation of being the enemy of the woodsman, swarming around, according to any luckless person who chances to get in the way.

If ever a more unfair picture of the character of an animal has been painted, a grave injustice has been done. The porcupine, as a matter of fact, is mostly intent on making its own business and hopes that other animals will do the same. It is not particularly afraid of any others, knowing as the skunk does, that it will not be attacked by any one so very young, and the very young soon learn that a good defense is a wonderful offense, reversing the usual strategy.

Printers Absolved of Charge of Irreverence

An average layman, fairly familiar with his Bible, lately quoted the Good Book to verify the statement of the Literary Digest, a biographer that in the Scriptures the person pronouncing the Lord did not begin with a capital letter. To his surprise, the learned editor was right. And if the reader turned back to the Old Testament, he discovered also that the prophets referring to God were in the same style. The reason for this, the biographer explains, is that early-day printers had inadequate upper cases (capitals) and that the rule was broken not because of a lack of reverence, but of necessity. So far as we know, Bible publishers are the only printers who have maintained true to this tradition. Certainly there are no other printers who do not use the upper case in a person referring to Christ or God.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

This Frank Decade

Mary Elizabeth has just started to dancing school and on the occasion of her second or third lesson her mother, sitting by as an interested spectator, was glad to see that she and her boy partner seemed to be holding a conversation. "What were you and Jimmie talking about?" she asked when the little girl joined her to the dance. "Oh, just talking," replied the youngster. "Well, what did Jimmie say?" persisted the mother. "He said, 'Gee, you're a rotten dancer,'" revealed Mary Elizabeth. "That," cried the strict parent, thinking her daughter would be offended. "What did you say to that, honey?" "I said," replied the child calmly, "Say, you're not so good yourself."

Calfish Peculiar

Calfishes are called calfishes because they have features on the head like cats'—"catfishes." They have scales, their bodies being naked and smooth or mottled with dark plates. The different species vary in size from a few inches long to six feet long. The stonecats and the mudminnows, seldom more than three inches long, sting painfully, but not dangerously. Only a few fossil calfishes have been found. The present calfishes are members of the group evidently come from scaly ancestors. The peculiarities that distinguish them are caused by specialization of some parts and by degeneration of other parts.

Swedes Made History

Swedish international relations were kept alive by the contact between the home country and Swedish emigrants and settlers abroad. This in the year 1792 was penetrated as far south as the Black Sea and founded an Anglo-Gothian dominion. Ours settled on the British islands and in Normandy. Headed by the great statesman and warrior, Kurik, a group went east across the Baltic and founded the empire of Russia, named after the coast district of Roslagen, near Stockholm, whence came its founders.

Old American College

Dartmouth college at Hanover, N. H., is an outgrowth of a school founded at Lebanon, Conn., by Eleazar Wheelock for the Christian education of Indian youth. Funds raised in England and contributed largely by Lord Dartmouth enabled Wheelock to move 150 miles to the Hanover plain, five miles north of the junction of the Connecticut and White rivers, and so allowed him to enlarge the scope of his work. The province of New Hampshire gave a charter to the new Dartmouth college in 1769.

History of the Diamond

India was the original home of the diamond as a jewel. For centuries India remained the sole source of Europe's diamond supply. About 1725 diamonds were discovered in Brazil. In 1867 diamonds were discovered in South Africa. South African diamonds constitute more than 90 per cent of the world's supply. From their discovery to the present time they have yielded $9,000,000,000. The diamonds of the world probably represent a value of $5,000,000,000.

Taking Things Calmly

Remember, it is not he who neither you or strikes you who insults you but it is your opinion about these things as being insulting. When, then, a man insults you, you must know that it is your own opinion which has irritated you. Therefore especially try not to be carried away by the appearance. For if you once gain time and delay, you will more easily master yourself.—Epictetus.

MAN WAS TRYING TO FLY BEFORE CHRIST

Experiments With Queer Devices in Ancient Times.

New York.—Although authenticated records show that man first rode the air successfully only 140 years ago, aviation as an idea is at least 2,300 years old.

Indications are that men were experimenting with fantastic devices for the conquest of the air long before the birth of Christ, according to a compilation of ancient chronicles made by the London Book.

Although the narrated flight of Archytas of Tarentum in 400 B. C., recorded by Gellius, is regarded largely as a flight of imagination, it is accepted as an indication that even then men were attempting seriously to imitate the birds.

"Many men of eminence among the Greeks, and Ptolemy the philosopher," says Gellius, "have in a most positive manner assured us that the model of a dove or pigeon, formed in wood by Archytas, was so contrived as to fly, so nicely was it balanced by weights and put in motion by hidden and enclosed air."

Da Vinci's Plan Scientific

Orbi's story of the fall of Icarus shows that the ambition was still alive in the first century of the Christian era, as does other mention of man-made wings and stumps modeled after birds.

At about the time that Columbus discovered America, Leonardo da Vinci gave his famous and scientifically sound plan for a flying machine. "A bird is an instrument working according to mathematical law, an instrument which it is within the capacity of man to reproduce with all its movements, though not with a corresponding degree of strength, for it is deficient in the power of maintaining equilibrium," he said. "To attain to the true science of the movement of birds in the air, it is necessary to give first the movement of the wings. Unless the movement of the wing is swifter than the movement of the air so pressed, the air will not become condensed and the bird will not support itself."

But even before Leonardo, Roger Bacon in the Thirteenth century conceived the idea of an artificial bird, an idea which is the subject of experimentation even today. The Golden Book article points out. Bacon set forth that "an instrument may be made to fly which if one design the midst of the instrument, and do turn an engine, by which the wings, being artificially colored, may beat the air and cause the movement of the flying bird."

First Successful Flight

On June 5 of that year at Annonay, France, the Montgolfiers sent up their first balloon, a bag 110 feet in circumference and weighing 300 pounds. Within a passenger, it shot up to a height of 6,000 feet in ten minutes, and traveled a mile and a half before it descended gently to earth.

On October 15 of the same year, in another machine built by the Montgolfiers, de Rozier rode the air for the first time successfully, striking the fire which heated the air within the gas-bag with straw and wool.

"After a few trials close to the ground, he desired to ascend to a great height," says the account. "The machine was accordingly permitted to rise, and ascend as high as the ropes, which were placed there purposely to detain it, would allow, which was about 84 feet. There M. de Rozier kept the machine aloft four minutes and twenty-five seconds by throwing straw and wool into the grate to keep up the fire. Then the machine descended exceedingly gently."

Fish Liars Club Now

Issuing Liar's License

Waterloo, N. Y.—Prompted by a real need, the Liar's club of Waterloo now issues a liar's license.

It all started when W. Fred Bacon, an attorney, returned from Florida with a story accompanied by photographs of catching 88 fish totaling 500 pounds in a single day. He was immediately awarded a card of honor by the Liar's club.

But the lying became so rampant that the executive committee decided to issue a card permitting its members to falsify. The card allows recklessness with the truth in all matters pertaining to fish or fishing for the current season. The grand seal of the Liar's club is added to the document.

Link Ancient Egypt

China in Snake Rites

Stockholm.—It is the Chinese during the Stone age had the same kind of snake worship as the inhabitants of Egypt, Mesopotamia, Persia and Russian Turkestan, was expressed by Prof. J. G. Anderson, Sweden's foremost expert on Chinese archeology.

Professor Anderson based his belief on the discovery of the cover of a Chinese grave-urn made during the Stone age in China.

Around the head of the figure of the urn, and down the man's back, Professor Anderson found twined a plaited braid of snakes corresponding almost exactly to snake designs found on Stone Age objects discovered in northern Africa and in the Near East.

MOWING MACHINES REVEAL PHEASANT NESTS

At this season a number of nests of the ringneck pheasant are being exposed by mowing machines, and at times the setting hen pheasant is killed. As a rule the farmer takes such sets of eggs and re-sets them under one of his hens. This is proper and in the interest of conservation, but when sets of eggs are taken under these conditions, the fact should be reported to the local conservation officer so that the possession may be entered in the records of the conservation department, and in order to avoid a technical violation of the game laws. As there is no provision for acquiring captive game birds stock from the wild birds reared from such eggs must be released later in the season when they have reached maturity.

SAFETY-PREVENTION CAMPAIGN

Michigan's second annual safety prevention campaign comes to a close on June 30.

Right now it is estimated that nearly one-half of the motor vehicles in the state are minus inspection certificates.

The inspection is free. Only necessary repairs must be paid for by motor car owners.

This is not a compulsory examination—but at the end of the campaign a rigid check will be made and prosecution follow for all whose cars do not conform to the safety regulations of the Michigan motor laws.

You still have time to get your badge of good citizenship. Why should you need to be either urged or admonished?

CAUGHT BASS WEEK-TOO SOON

The best law-enforcing agency is public sentiment. A week before the open season on bass, a district conservation officer in a crowd of some forty people, watching several pick fishermen playing the pond in the Edenville pond in Midland county. One of the fishermen reeled in a four pound bass. Before he had time to decide to keep the fish, he had been so inclined, he was greeted with shouted advice to "put it back," "tie it up for a week," "you're one week early buddy," "write your name on it and come back next Sunday," etc.

Public sentiment in this instance put its foot down solidly and without a moment's hesitation on the taking of a game fish before the legal open season.

EMERSON BATES

VISITS CHINA

about seeing in Manila some months ago. After the ride we returned to the boat. We could have spent days in Hong Kong but there are supposed to be many more interesting sights farther north. Hong Kong was very pretty all lighted up. The whole side of the hill was filled with points of lights here and there. Street lights outlined the whole ridge of the island. We stayed up till it all faded out and hoped for calm weather.

The trip to Hong Kong was terrible. All four of us were sick and the children couldn't understand why they were not feeling well. The ship rolled and pitched and tossed. I knew it would end between now and when I arrive in New York. I only have about 50 days on the water, any one or more of which may be just as rough or rougher. I'm a good sailor in calm weather.

Since we have left Hong Kong there is a little sea but not enough yet to bother me. We will arrive in Shanghai Friday morning and leave Monday morning. Two long shopping days. One day for sightseeing and three nights to find out if Shanghai night life is exaggerated. I wish I could have you here with me, for you know there is an old Chinese proverb that reads, "Once seeing is worth twice telling."

May 15th.

I thought of you many times last Sunday (Mother's Day) and nearly sent you a cable, but as it would cost $22.00 gold, I decided to let my letter be enough and bring you a nice present for the money.

At present we are on the inland sea of Japan. Countless islands of different sizes are on all sides of us. It is supposed to be a very pretty trip but today it is foggy and very cold so I am inside writing instead of freezing on the deck. Also Betty has a hard cold and I am looking after the children.

About four in the afternoon we entered the Whangpo river and sailed for about twelve miles, having a good view of the country. However, with the exception of one pagoda, I might have thought myself in the states as there was nothing Chinese in the picture. About six we docked and as soon as dinner was over, we rushed out for our first view of Shanghai. They had already started to unload the ship and the dock was a swarm of coolies carrying away the cargo. A pair of them would shuffle along with the load suspended from a pole over their shoulders, chanting a peculiar song. It was interesting at first but after four days of the chant, we were glad to get away.

At this point let me tell you about the money difficulty. The value of the Mexican dollar varies from day to day, but as I told you we obtained a very high rate. The Mexican dollar is divided as ours into cents but the small coins of 20, 10, 5 and 1-cent are called small money. Paper money is issued in bills from 10 cents up and is called big money as is also the silver dollar. The copper penny is worth only about a third of a cent. Big money is worth three value more, and small money is not worth its face. So whenever you buy anything you get change in big money.

While in port we live on the boat, so we try to have all our meals there. In the afternoon we went down into the city to a linen shop called Elbos. They had a wonderful stock of linens and as there were a number of things Betty had on her list, there were a number of things purchased. Her main purchase was a three by three and a half banquet cloth, cutwork and point lace inlays and edging with a dozen large napkins to match. It is really wonderful. She also purchased some other linens as towels, pillow cases, etc., and the rest of our party also purchased a lot of linens. While we were still there Ethel Dunlop from Corregidor came in. I think I have told you about her before, at least you have seen her picture, for she posed for that Red Cross poster "The Greatest Mother Of All." She and Betty Silkman had come up to China ten days before. She said she would stop with us the next day. Well the next morning the stewardess was busy so I took care of the children and Betty and Ethel went to a store away out in what is called the French Concession to a shop called Fala, also famous for linens. NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Congress Recesses, the Farm Aid and Reapportionment Measures Are Signed.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WITH the farm aid bill signed by President Hoover and $151,500,000 appropriated to begin putting its provisions into operation, and the census and reapportionment measure also made law by the President's signature, congress quit work for the summer in the middle of the week. The senate recessed until August 19, when it will reassemble to begin debate on the tariff bill which its finance committee is expected to have completed by that date. The recess of the lower house is to extend until September 23, and between that day and October 14 it intends to hold only perfunctory sessions twice a week on the supposition that the senate will not have passed the tariff measure before the latter date.

Senator Borah of Idaho made a strong fight to have the tariff revision confined to agricultural and directly related commodities and in the course of a heated debate asserted that his resolution to that effect was in accord with the President's views and the primary purpose of the session. Most of the regular Republicans and seven Democrats, however, stood firm for more general revision and succeeded in beating the resolution by the narrow margin of one, the vote being 38 to 39.

JUST before recessing congress gave its approval to President Hoover's recommendation that France be relieved of the necessity of paying the $400,000,000 due August 1 for the surplus war supplies it purchased after the close of the war, on the condition that the Mellon-Berenger debt funding agreement be ratified before that date by the French parliament. Under the terms of that accord the sum mentioned is absorbed as part of the French debt which is funded over a period of sixty-two years. The arrangement was attacked in both houses. The senate adopted a separate resolution on motion of Senator Howell of Nebraska declaring that in effect the United States under the Mellon-Berenger agreement, canceled the entire $428,777,000 of the principal and accumulated interest on the 1925 of the French debt. The payments to be made by the French government over a period of sixty-two years are merely the equivalent of annual interest payments of 2.17 per cent on the original sum, the resolution declares.

As the matter now stands, if either the French parliament or the American congress fails to ratify the Mellon-Berenger agreement, France must pay the $400,000,000 on May 1 next.

TRANSFER of prohibition enforcement activities to the Department of Justice has been indefinitely postponed. Senator Jones introduced a resolution for the appointment of a joint committee to study reorganization and centralization of dry enforcement, as asked by the President, but the anti-Volstead senators, aroused by the repeated killings by enforcement officers, started such a hot debate, denouncing that the prohibition is no longer needed, that the administration tenters had the resolution withdrawn until August 19, when it was promised a vote would be taken.

Citizens of International Falls, Minn., where Henry Virkum, an apparently innocent man, was killed by enforcement agents, appealed directly to the President for protection. He did not reply immediately, so the city council of the place sent a telegram to him to the same effect. Then, at the White House press conference, Mr. Hoover gave out this formal statement: "I deeply deplore the killing of any person. The Treasury department is making every effort to prevent the misuse of arms. Any case of misuse will be determined by the ordinary proceedings of the department and the courts. I hope that the communities along the border will do their best to help the treasury and the systematic way that is being carried on by international criminals against the laws of the United States. It is these activities that are the root of all of our difficulties."

Mayors of Detroit, Wyandotte, River Rouge, Trenton and other towns and cities of Michigan close to the Canadian border responded with pledges of wholehearted co-operation with the federal authorities if a sane enforcement is adopted. That the runners up that way are encouraged by the attacks on the enforcers was shown when a liquor boat opened fire on a customs patrol speed boat near Detroit, smashing its bow and windshield and damaging its machinery. Officials of the Province of Ontario announced that they would try to reduce the peril of border gun fights by disarming the occupants of all boats leaving lake and river ports.

WHEN Oscar De Priest, colored, was sent to congress by a colored Chicago district everyone knew trouble was likely to result. It has come, and is likely to stay for some time. In the house Mr. De Priest had conducted himself in a manner that cannot be criticized, but the presence of himself and his family in Washington has brought on social complications. Mrs. Hoover recently entertained several congressional women in the White House, and among her guests was Mrs. De Priest. Of course the South rose in immediate and loud protest, and the action of the First Lady has been attacked as unseemly and unwise by southern legislators, officials and individuals. The implications of the affair are more than social, for the administration is receiving the numerous warnings of a renewed solid Democratic South, these coming especially from those states below the Mason and Dixon line which were carried by Hoover.

VIRGINIA'S anti-Tammany Democrats, who, being bone dry, were opposed to Al Smith, consolidated themselves in a state convention in Roanoke which was dominated by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church south. The 800 delegates of Washington and Lee university for governor and C. O. Berkeley for attorney general. The executive committee was authorized to select a candidate for lieutenant general, and may name either J. H. Price, the regular Democratic nominee, or the man to be picked by the Republican convention. The De Priest incident cropped up here, too. I. O. Trotman bolted the convention when it rejected a platform plank he offered denouncing Mrs. Hoover's action in entertaining the Negro woman.

AMASSADOR DAVES and Prime Minister MacDonald between them gave a great boost last week to the cause of reduction of naval armament and consequently of world peace. Their speeches, the one at the dinner of the Pilgrims' society in London and the other at Lossiemouth, Scotland, had been awaited with intense interest, and neither of them was a disappointment. General Daves declared that naval reduction was the problem of outstanding importance to the world at the present time, and he discussed the methods whereby it might be brought about. He said it must concern all naval powers and should have world sanction. The final negotiations, he asserted, must be carried out by statesmen rather than by naval experts, from whom he personally would expect a failure to agree. Said the ambassador: "It would seem that to adjust human nature the method of arriving at naval reduction—each government might separately obtain from its respective naval experts their definition of the yardstick and then the inevitable compromise between these differing definitions, which would be expressed in a final fixation of the technical yardstick, should be made by a committee of statesmen of the nations, re-entered from the beginning by these separate expressions of abstract technical naval opinion and advice to the statesman."

"These statesmen should further be the ones to draw up for the world the terms of the final agreement upon naval reduction which should be couched in those simple terms understandable to the ordinary man in the street and which, while the pet aversion of the expert, are the highest expression of true statesmanship. That final agreement covering quantitative dispositions would go to the nations for approval or rejection."

Mr. MacDonald told of his conversation with General Daves and expressed his sincere belief that they might be instrumental "in preparing a bond around which other nations might ultimately gather co-operatively, following studying the arts and the ways of peace."

PREMIER POINCARÉ of France held a long conference in Paris with Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany, who was on his way home from Madrid and though there was no public announcement, it was understood they reached a complete agreement concerning the coming conference that will put the Young reparations plan in operation. Then M. Poincaré went before the foreign affairs and finance committees of the house of deputies and urged that the way be cleared by the ratification of the American and British debt agreements. He told the two commissions that the great liquidation conference would be called soon so as to enable the chamber of deputies and the reichstag to ratify the Young plan in good time for it to go into effect on September 1 and for the former body to put its O. K. on the debt agreements.

LOTT, Assolant and Lefevre, the French aviators who flew across the Atlantic from Old Orchard, Maine, are being accorded all due honors in their home land, for they made a great flight notwithstanding the fact that they landed first on the coast of Spain instead of Le Bourget. This was made necessary by the unexpected presence in their plane of one Schreiber, a brash American youth who stowed away on the Yellow Bird and who added weight made the take-off difficult and prematurely exhausted the supply of fuel. Displaying scarcely the intelligence of a seven-year-old child, Schreiber did not realize that he was endangering the lives of the aviators and imperiling the success of their flight. The three Frenchmen treated him with the greatest forbearance and admitted he had nerve. But it is good to read that he was almost completely ignored in Paris and all right minded people hope that that will be his fate on his return to the United States. M. Lott made the youth sign an agreement that half of any money he might receive as a result of his footloose exploit should be given to Assolant and Lefevre, the pilots, and to a fund for victims of air accidents.

Seven persons lost their lives when the City of Ottawa, huge air liner of the Imperial Airways on her way from England to Paris, with eleven passengers fell in the English channel three miles from the English shore. The main shaft of one of the two motors broke and the pilot was unable to keep the plane up or to land safely. Four passengers and the pilot and mechanic were rescued.

COLONEL and Mrs. Lindbergh emerged from their honeymoon seclusion aboard a power boat on Wednesday, appearing at Mitchell Field, New York, to take part in the first test in the prize competition held by the Guglielmo and the hope of discovering an absolutely safe airplane. Lindy put on a helmet and necktie and took up the first entry, which he gave Mrs. Lindbergh a ride in a fast army plane.

ALL the troubles of Gen. Branwell Booth, former commander in chief of the Salvation Army, came to an end when he died at his home in London. He was given a great funeral by the army whose council had deposed him recently, and its flags were kept flying high for as its officials said, "General Booth is not dead—he has passed to glory." Others taken by death were Asa P. Potter, well-known capitalist of Boston; Sir A. Maurice Low, for many years American correspondent of London papers, and S. F. Kingston, veteran general manager for Florens Ziegfeld.
